Excess Hours (may skip if you are an out-of-state student)
Undergraduate students who have enrolled at any Texas public institution of higher education since fall 1999, who are classified as Texas Residents and/or pay in-state tuition rates may be subject to higher tuition rates for attempting excessive hours.
1. Go to: https://my.unt.edu/
2. Select the Student Center button from the left-hand menu
3. Scroll down to the bottom right of the page and click on the Excess Hours link
4. Select the upcoming semester with Hours Included to show all hours counting toward degree

5. List the number of Hours Included: _____________________

6. Near the beginning of this exercise, you calculated an estimate of the hours you would have remaining if you changed to a CoB major (#8 under “Selected Program” Degree Audit). Please list the number of credit hours you estimated:

____________________________________________________________________________________

7. Add the number from #5 and #6 together (Example 96 Hours Included + 63 hours remaining = 159 hours):

____________________________________________________________________________________

The Description area on your Excess Hours page will indicate the number of hours you are allowed to attempt beyond the number required for your degree. Most students will be subject to a 30 hour limit. Any hours beyond 30 are considered excessive and will result in additional tuition charges.* If the total number you calculate is over 150, you may run the risk of paying excess hours tuition.

*More information regarding Excess Hours may be found online at http://registrar.unt.edu/registration/excessive-hours
